

While stopping or reducing your alcohol intake can be hard, most people can stop or limit their drinking by changing certain behaviors that encourage drinking, getting support from family, friends, and community, and by seeking professional help from their doctor.

Tips for Reducing Your Drinking

- Keep track of how much you drink.
- Try to have no more than one alcoholic drink per hour.
- Don't drink on an empty stomach.
- Avoid situations that might trigger your urge to drink such as parties or bars.
- Get support - ask your partner, family, and friends to help you stay away from alcohol.
- Find other activities to get involved with that don't involve alcohol.
- Talk to your doctor.

According to the National Institute on Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism, 3 in 10 adults drink at levels that elevate their risk of physical, mental health, and social problems.

For most adults, drinking small amounts of alcohol is safe. However, moderate to heavy drinking can increase your risk for a range of physical, mental health, and social problems.

Am I a heavy or risky drinker?

A standard drink contains about 14 grams of “pure” alcohol. The amount is equivalent to one beer, one glass of wine, or one mixed drink. Doctors recommended guidelines for moderate drinking are:

Women (age 21-64)

No more than 3 standard drinks per occasion and no more than 7 standard drinks per week.

Men (age 21-64)

No more than 4 standard drinks per occasion and no more than 14 standard drinks per week.

To determine if you are at risk for increased mental, medical, or social problems, complete the Alcohol Use Disorders Identification Test (AUDIT).

For each question, circle the number that matches your answer. When you've answered all of the questions, add up the numbers circled to get your score.
